

B.C. Tel on strike

Local members of the Telecommunications Workers Union employed at B.C. Telephone Company joined in a province-wide strike by walking off the job yesterday.

Pickets formed outside the B.C. Tel offices on Kalum Thursday morning.

Throughout the province, 10,000 members of the TWU staged walk-outs in an escalation of their rotating strike action.

About 800 of the striking workers are employed at Canadian Telephones and Supplies, a subsidiary of B.C. Tel which has its head office in Burnaby, B.C., and which employs about 1,200 workers throughout the province.

The other 9,200 workers are employed in B.C. Tel operations.

HAVE NO CONTRACT

The workers have been without a contract since Dec. 31, but today's was the first full-scale strike action. The union favors the adoption of the recommendations of mediator Dr. Noel Hall, who issued his report in June.

Disagreement on the issue of contracting out led to a breakdown in negotiations last week.

Company spokesman Jim Peacock said the day started with about 3,000 workers off the job.

"Less than three hours before shift started, the remaining 7,000 in the bargaining unit were either forced to leave their jobs by pickets posted outside their offices or were called off work by shop stewards," he said.

He said about 1,500 supervisors have been dispatched to various parts of the province to assist about 500 supervisors already working to provide essential services.

The strike came after B.C. Tel had announced a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone responsible for damaging company property.

CABLE CUT
 A cable south of Nanaimo on Vancouver Island was cut Wednesday, disrupting telephone services on Gabriola Island. The damage also disrupted services for about 75 customers in Nanaimo and knocked local radio station CHUB off the air for two hours.

It was the third cable-slashing incident near the Vancouver Island city since 280 union members walked off the job there earlier this week.

"It was an emergency situation over there," said Matthews. "Those people were completely isolated. (They rely on Nanaimo for hospital services)."

Matthews said services were restored early this morning.

He also said Wednesday's snow storm increased the load on already-strained services. Long-distance calls were up by 15 per cent and directory-assistance use increased by about 10 per cent, he said.

Braving the cold and snow, local members of the Telecommunications Workers Union picketed in front of the B.C. Tel office on Kalum yesterday.

Ryan Stokes is holding up an empty stocking in hopes that people will get out to support the Lions Bowl-a-thon this weekend. All money raised will go towards the Empty stocking fund to help the needy in Terrace around Christmas time. Bowlers have been asked to get pledges on an hourly basis for a four-hour or marathon bowl. The lanes are free to the bowlers as are refreshments.

Hydro settled

VANCOUVER (CP) — The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority reached a contract agreement Thursday before the union's threatened noon strike deadline.

Union business agent Doug Cronk said terms of the agreement will be forwarded to the union's 2,500 members. Voting will take place by mail and results should be known in three weeks.

Cronk said Wednesday that the union will recommend acceptance of the settlement proposed by mediator Ken Albertini.

He said details of the agreement would not be released until after the vote results. However, Labor Minister Allan Williams has said it is a two-year agreement within federal AntiInflation Board guidelines.

Negotiators for the two sides continued their discussions Thursday following a Hydro announcement Wednesday that the Crown utility was prepared to accept Albertini's recommendations which already had gained the acceptance of the IBEW Local 258's negotiating committee.

NEEDED SIGNING
 The union said a memorandum of agreement had to be signed by noon Thursday to avoid the planned mass walkout today.

Cronk said the deadline was set because union membership meetings had been scheduled for the day.

The union, which represents electricians, operators and truck drivers employed in the generation, transmission and distribution of electrical power throughout B.C., served strike notice Sept. 9. The previous contract expired March 31.

Albertini reported out of the dispute Oct. 18, but in an unusual move by Labor Minister Allan Williams, he was asked to propose settlement terms to break the deadlock in negotiations.

Most of the items in dispute were non-monetary.

Cabinet shuffle distributes transportation

LANGLEY, B.C. (CP) Premier Bill Bennett announced a change in the areas of responsibility involving three cabinet ministers.

Bennett told a news conference that Recreation and Conservation Minister Saw Bawlf will assume responsibility for the British Columbia Ferry Corp., replacing Transport Minister Jack Davis and Provincial Secretary and Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy assumes responsibility for the B.C. Steamship Corp.

Davis will take over responsibility for provincial air services from Mrs. McCarthy.

Premier Bennett said that because the Crown ferry service is of such vital concern to Vancouver Island residents, a cabinet minister from an island constituency should be responsible for the ferry corporation.

Bawlf represents a Victoria riding.

Bennett said Davis has carried an extremely heavy load since his appointment to the cabinet in December, 1975.

Davis will continue to be responsible for B.C. Hydro and the B.C. Energy Commission.

Bawlf, speaking in Victoria, said he welcomed the challenge to take over responsibility for the ferry corporation and added that his appointment was no criticism of Davis' performance.

He said he will have a plan ready in the spring for the future direction of the ferry corporation.

New Courthouse for Terrace

A $2.5 million courthouse for Terrace was announced by Attorney-General Garde Gardom yesterday. Construction is expected to start in the spring with completion for the three-courtroom complex in two years.

The building will house Supreme, County, Provincial and Family courts. Supreme Court will share a full-sized courtroom with a jury box with County court. Provincial Court will be given a full-sized courtroom without a jury box.

Family court will have a smaller room to hold hearings.

Accommodation will also be provided for the public, judges chambers, registry staff, lawyers, court reporters, sheriff's officers and probation officers.

Although the location has not been chosen, the Attorney-General's department has asked the B.C. Building Corp. to assess various land options.

The courts are now all in one room of the provincial government building on Lakelse Ave. There is no Supreme court facility in terrace.

The courthouse moved to the present sight in early spring to make room for expanded RCMP offices in the Municipal hall.

Vandalism rampant in Terrace: committee hopes to correct situation

BY Donna Vallieres
 Herald Staff Writer

Acting Mayor Doug Mumford.

Vandalism is on the increase in Terrace and about 100 people who got tired of smashed windows and damaged cars got together at a Chamber of Commerce sponsored meeting Tuesday night to discuss what to do about the problem.

"It's got to be dealt with and it's got to be stopped," according to Bernie Selder, chairman of the panel.

The panel was made up of Skeena MLA Cyril Shelford, Terrace RCMP staff Sgt. Kick Latta, Arnold Brenner of the Terrace Communities Correctional Centre, and Selder explained that the meeting was called to find out who is interested in finding a solution to the problem of vandalism, and judging from the turnout, a great many people are.

"The meeting was a start," Selder said, and it was decided to get something going on a positive manner. A committee to be co-ordinated by the chamber will be struck to investigate the problem.

Non only does vandalism affect the business community, but is also a major problem for teachers in Terrace.

A number of teachers showed up at the meeting, commenting afterward on the high incidence of vandalism affecting teachers.

"Merchants aren't the only segment of the community who have been vandalized," one teacher explained.

He said it is "very upsetting" when teachers have tires slashed and headlights kicked in, and spoke of several incidents when teachers' properties have been damaged forcing hundreds of dollars to be spent on repair costs.

When incidents of vandalism against teachers continually occur, it makes teachers think of moving to a different community, one teacher said, adding Terrace may lose some good teachers because of this.

"I just don't know what to do," he said, explaining that vandalism is part of a larger problem facing society.

Adults' expectations of young people are not high enough, the teacher said. "Vandals are not being held responsible for their actions."

Skeena MLA Cyril Shelford said vandalism is "one of the penalties we pay for a permissive society."

Vandalism in Terrace is now higher than any other town of its size in the province and has increased faster, Shelford said.

New legislation brought in this year which gives the courts the power to sentence youthful offenders to training camps is a step in the right direction, he added.

Shelford asked for more community support for such programs as Weewanee Camp near Kitimat, a program which attempts to encourage young offenders to stay within the law.

There are three things which make law enforcement workable, Shelford stated — the police, the people and the courts. If one of these breaks down, the whole system will break down, he said.

Staff Sgt. Dick Latta of the Terrace detachment RCMP said that vandalism in Terrace is a problem, but added that there are very few places in the province that have not shown increases.

Terrence has shown a 100 per cent increase in vandalism over the last year, but staff Sgt. Latta cautioned against relying too heavily on statistics which can be misleading.

Vandalism in Terrace is "no more appalling than anywhere else," he stated.

Figures from January to September show 287 reported incidents of willful damage, compared to 165 for that period in 1976. As an example, there were 31 incidents reported in September.

Vandalism in Terrace covers a whole range of damages, Staff Sgt. Latta said, but the most common are broken storefront windows and damage to cars.

When asked what the possible solution to vandalism Staff Sgt. Latta answered, "I haven't a clue."

Police officers across B.C. are facing the same problem and are trying several solutions in an attempt to decrease vandalism. The biggest obstacle to a solution is the difficulty in catching offenders, he said. Even with stepped up patrols and foot patrols the vandal can escape the scene faster than he can be caught.

One way the police can be more effective is through public co-operation, Staff Sgt. Latta said, adding that people seem more willing to come forward by reporting complaints.

"People are tired of being apathetic," he said.

The committee will be formed in the near future to investigate ways of decreasing the threat of vandalism in Terrace.

Renewal

Sacred Heart Parish of Terrace will hold a week long Parish Renewal Nov. 26 to Dec. 2. All parish activities and programs will be suspended for this week, including bingo Mon. Nov. 28.

The conference will begin at 7:30 p.m. week nights and will be followed by mass.

The Renewal will be led by Father Joseph McCart OMI from Arnprior, Ont. McCart is an Oblate father who taught at St. Patrick's High School in Ottawa for several years.

For the past two years, McCart has done mission work at Galilee Community near Arnprior and has lead several retreats.

UIC to be monitored

By GINNY GALT
OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor General J.J. Macdonell says he will monitor the Unemployment Insurance Commission's efforts to improve its financial controls following the commission's disclosure that benefit overpayments might have been as high as $157.8 million last year.

The commission said in its 1976 financial statement, audited by Macdonell, "the commission has established that it has paid benefits to claimants who were not entitled to such benefits and that the amount of such overpayments not previously identified by the commission's regular control activities is most likely to be approximately $95 million."

The commission had estimated in February that there were 445,884 overpayment cases in 1976 worth $62.8 million. The bulk of that had been recovered.

The final 1976 financial statement said "because of the large number of claimants to be monitored, control procedures are selective rather than universal in application and the requirement for prompt service has influenced the commission to rely mainly upon control activities which take place after claimants have begun to receive benefits."

TOOK SAMPLE
The commission said it based its estimate of an additional $95 million in overpayments on "the results of a statistical sample of claimants to whom benefits were paid in 1976."

There were approximately three million individual claimants who received benefits in 1976.

The commission said in its financial report the results of its statistical sample also "indicate that in a significant number of cases, the commission did not completely adhere to its administrative procedures in the processing of continuing benefit payments and that some part of the amounts so paid could represent further overpayments."

The unemployment insurance program is financed by contributions from the government, employees and employers. Of the approximately $3.3 billion paid in benefits last year, the government's share was about $1.4 billion.

Booster cables might cause damage

Haphazard use of booster cables to jump-start a disabled car can cause personal injury or damage the car's electrical system, according to the B.C. Automobile Association.

If you are going to attempt it, follow the directions exactly. If you have any doubts about what to do, let a professional mechanic handle it, warns the auto club.

Jump-starting permits a dead or weakened battery to borrow starting power from a fully charged one. When used correctly, booster cables, a set of two cables with metal clamps on the end of each, can prove invaluable for an emergency start. The cables can cost anywhere from $4 to $27. The BCAA suggest the following guidelines:

Follow the directions on jump-starting given in the owner's manual for the disabled vehicle. Do not borrow a manual for a different make, model or year of car.

Batteries of the two vehicles must be of the same voltage. Never attempt to jump-start a 12-volt battery from a six volt or vice versa. Voltages are usually found on battery cases. When in doubt, count the cells. A 12-volt battery will have six caps; a six-volt will have three.

Park the boosting vehicle close to the stranded vehicle so the two batteries can easily be reached with the cables, but do not allow the vehicles to touch.

Remove jewelry such as rings and metal watch bands. Put both vehicles in park or neutral and apply the parking brakes. Turn off the ignition and all electrical accessories. Keep sparks and flames away from batteries and do not smoke.

Remove filler caps and top up batteries with water if they are very low. Blow across the top of the battery to dispel any accumulation of gas. Do not attempt to start a car with a frozen battery.

Place a cloth over the uncapped vent holes of both batteries.

Determine polarity. On jumper cables, cable clamps, battery terminals or battery cases, Positive connections are frequently identified by a red color, the symbol of a plus sign, the letter "P" or "Pos". Negative connections are designated by a black color, the symbol of a minus sign, the letter "N" or "Neg".

One battery terminal is grounded-connected by wire to the car's body or engine block. The other terminal wire will lead to the solenoid or starter. The grounded wire, in most cases, is negative.

Attach one jumper cable between the two positive terminals.

Attach one end of the second jumper cable to the negative terminal of the booster battery and the other end to some part of the engine in the car being started. This final connection should be at least a foot from the battery (to avoid sparks which could cause an explosion) and must be on a piece of metal that is not painted, chrome-plated, heavily rusted or coated with grease.

Some English or older Canadian or American cars are grounded positive. In this case reverse the jumping procedure, connecting the negative terminals first. Then connect the positive terminal of the booster battery with the engine block of the car with positive ground.

Start the engine of the boosting vehicle, a fast idle is best, and then attempt to start the disabled vehicle. If it fails to start, check all connections and try again. Don't operate the starter for more than 20 seconds, allowing it to rest and cool off between tries. If it still won't start, chances are that something else is wrong or the dead battery is complicated by an accompanying malfunction.

Once the disabled vehicle is operating again, quickly disconnect the cables in the reverse order they were put on, first removing the negative cable from the engine block of the car with the weak battery. When removing jumper cables, be careful of moving engine components such as belts and fans.

Remember, cautions the BCAA, jump-starting is only an emergency measure. The battery and the electrical system should be checked professionally as soon as possible, even if you do get your vehicle started temporarily.

The cast of "Doctor, Doctor" put on a terrific rehearsal Wednesday night. The actors, all students of Caledonia Sr. Secondary under the competent direction of Stefan Cieslik, showed this critic that there is a delightful talent reserve in our town.

This musical comedy, is based on satirist Moliere's classic farce "The Doctor in Spite of Himself".

It is about an 18th century logger who, loving spouse becomes a Doctor. The story line includes star-crossed lovers, wife-beating, interfering parents, burlesque style comedy relief in the form of two interfering servants and a lesson on the power of the almighty dollar.

Tickets will be available at the door. Adult admission is $3.00 and students and senior citizens, $1.50. Performances will start at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday to Friday, Nov. 29 to Dec. 2.

RCMP scandal another Watergate

By GARRY FAIRBAIRN
WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Post, whose zeal in exposing the Watergate scandal won it international acclaim, maintains the RCMP performed the same kind of illegal acts that former president Richard Nixon's aides and officials did.

But, in a lead editorial on the RCMP scandals, the newspaper applies a different standard to the Canadian misdeeds, saying in effect that the Canadian government and "Canada's FBI" had excuses for their actions.

The Post says "the Canadian police scandals seem, to an American eye, strikingly similar to the history of abuses that go under the name of Watergate." But it adds that Canadian political reaction is muted and "the present government under Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau will certainly survive."

Trudeau's political survival would come despite the fact that the RCMP "have been guilty of burglary, stealing political records, illegally opening mail and political harassment that on one occasion went as far as arson."

"The Trudeau government knew all about it from the beginning," RECALI FLQ.

The reason for the difference in the reactions of the U.S. and Canadian publics to similar abuses, in The Post's view, is that in 1970 members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec kidnapped two men and murdered one, Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte.

"In the midst of that crisis, the Canadian government discovered that it knew nothing about the kidnappers or their organizations or their political milieu. The government told the Mounties that it could not afford to continue in that ignorance."

"Everything that has happened since then reflects the torment of a government trying to cope with the threat of terrorism."

"The transgressions of the Nixon White House were aimed either at the Democratic presidential campaign or at subversion that existed nowhere but in the imagination of Mr. Nixon himself. In Canada the terrorist episode was brief but it was real."

But if an isolated act of violence in 1970 can be cited by The Post to justify what the newspaper sees as blatantly illegal abuses of power in following years, what of Nixon's excuses for his administration's burglary and political harassment?

As Nixon's defenders have frequently noted, the United States at the time of Watergate had just passed through a period of turmoil and widespread violence. Cities were torn by riots, politically-inspired bombings and robberies hit every region and militant agitators appeared to have links with foreign supporters.

REJECT EXCUSES

In turning their backs on Nixon most Americans appeared to have concluded that such turmoil was not sufficient excuse for Watergate and other White House operations. Perhaps the most intolerable of presidential actions was that Nixon lied to the American people.

Because Canada was not involved in anything like the Vietnam war, The Post says, Canadians did not experience the same erosion of trust in government and "Canadian attitudes toward the Mounties are very similar to American attitudes two decades ago toward the FBI and the CIA."

The newspaper also finds consolation in RCMP clumsiness, saying "whatever the Mounties' offences there's one thing that you have to say for them: they did it all terribly ineptly." The Post does not remark on the skill of the burglars who were caught at Watergate.

The editorial concludes by saying "the time to start worrying is when the political infiltration succeeds, the harassment works, dissidents lose the elections and never a word is heard about the methods of the police."

Others might well say that when that stage is reached it is too late to start worrying.

"I've had a hard day, so don't make any smart remarks while I'm carrying a cream pie."

No change in store for Quebec Liberals

Montreal Le Devoir: Those who expected Quebec's Liberal party to undergo a radical transformation during its weekend congress were deceiving themselves. If the Liberals were to regain power next week, their program would be similar to the one we know from their recent past. Like many democratic parties in the Western world, they lean toward a conservative liberalism.

Private sector initiative is supported at all levels; individual liberties are exalted; national and collective aspirations are either called into question or openly denounced; increased state powers are feared and society's militants—whose thought loosely reflects middle-class consciousness—are worried about government intervention. ...

Concerning the collective project which is expected to culminate in Quebec's independence, the Liberals are opposed to the "Quebec of liberties," specifically individual liberties. ...

Of all the excellent speeches heard, that made by Prof. John Trent should serve as a lesson and practical guide for them. He didn't hesitate to tell them that the image of the Quebec Liberal party wasn't very good because the population did not distinguish the changes in the party's policy. The Liberals have not reflected sufficiently on their past short-comings, their elitism, their distance from the people, and their manipulative tendencies.

Prof. Trent also warned the Liberals about a double obsession: the leadership race (as if they were looking, were waiting for a saviour "on a white horse") and the question of the referendum.

In addition many observers fear that the conquest of power is being put well before the study of changes in Quebec society and of policies better adapted to social and economic conditions. ... Another observation of Prof. Trent's hit even more at the heart of the problem which this congress posed.

It is not enough for the Liberal party to defend the federalist option, that is necessary. "It must be the party of involved and reformist liberalism rather than elitist and conservative liberalism." ...

To become once again this reform party, a party with which the people might identify, the Liberal party can't limit itself to fighting the Parti Quebecois and its ideas. It must also prepare its plan for society.

This challenge will only really be met the day when the Liberals will have chosen a leader who will incarnate this plan and open new avenues. ...—Michel Roy (Nov. 21)

Enemies winners in security issue

Ottawa, — There has been only one winner in the political firestorm that swept Parliament over the security issue. And the one clear winner has been Canada's enemies.

"There are people within and outside this country," an old friend high in the Canadian security and intelligence service observes sadly, "who are dedicated to its dismemberment and destruction."

Her Majesty's supposed loyal Opposition and the NDP have done nothing more than that — weaken Canada's defences against terrorists, subversives and espionage — cheered on by a largely hysterical and irresponsible national news media.

Together the political opposition in Parliament and the bird-dogs of the "investigative" media have damaged to an incalculable degree, perhaps even temporarily destroyed the nation's security system.

Take just one point, the mail.

During and since World War II — and likely long before that — Canadian security has had access to the mails.

Not all the mails. Not yours. Nor mine. Nor the people next door.

But to "sensitive" mail, which they knew or suspected through long training and counter-intelligence forces, as a channel of information between subversives, terrorists, espionage agents and other enemies of the country.

These enemies — or at least enough of them for the Canadian security services to worry about — believed the mails were "safe" from even legitimately prying eyes.

Now, thanks to the reckless opposition and the irresponsible national media they know it is not.

So they will look for — and certainly find — other channels.

And our security forces will have to start from scratch rooting them out.

That's only one example, the mail.

There are others, where the security procedures, now exposed, will have to be dismantled and others put into place.

And what has it accomplished for the Opposition and the national media?

Public contempt for their attempt to soil the reputation of an honored institution, an important part of the very history of Western Canada.

And proof that the public no longer can be whipped into a froth of outrage by self-seeking politicians and the national press, radio and TV.

Prime Minister Trudeau may have touched the heart-nerve of all Canadians when he said that in certain circumstances when the safety of the state is at stake, the police and security forces may have to break the law.

The strange situation of the RCMP being pilloried by the politicians and the national press has been taking an even stranger twist.

Some of the more sensitive Conservatives, in better touch than others with the public, have sensed the resentment against this smearing of the RCMP.

These worried Conservatives have started a political backfire, suggesting that Prime Minister Trudeau, intent on destroying the RCMP, leaked or had his agents leak information besmirching the force, and that some dumb Tories and the NDP stumbled into his trap.

The first phase of the Food Inquiry is over which included public hearings for those who wished to present their views and for Comapny's that were invited to present their views to give the Committee information on the working of the industry. In most cases co-operation has been excellent. At the same time the hearings were going on, our Research people were working full time gathering information on cost of production, processing, regional mark up in different areas to compare with Alberta and the Northwest U.S.A. It will be interesting when all this information comes together, which is expected to be completed in three months, however some may take a little longer.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture came out with a report last week indicating the average Canadian spends less of his or her disposable income on food than any other country in the world, according to this report the average industrial worker spends only 13 per cent of disposable income on food, down from 17 per cent three years ago. Some people watching the inquiry are a little confused between the Committee Public Hearings and Research studies being done through questionnaires that ask hundreds of questions, to be followed through with interviews where further information is needed. All research is being done with the view of continuing up-date of information that can and will be a guide to future governments as to Production costs and market trends in the U.S. North West and Western Canada. As I see, our main function on the committee is trying to find ways for the Government to maintain a stable industry at all levels; production, processing, wholesale and retail. There is no question that this will require far more planning and co-ordination between all levels that seen in the past. There is simply no point in the Government encouraging production and processing unless there is long term assurance of sales. This year we have seen two clear examples of this weak ness with the closing of the Hog slaughter plant in Vancouver and the recent problem with the possible closing of the potato plant in Richmond, which could leave 14,000 tons of potatoes on the farms with no place to go.

All of these things affect the employment of our people and will require definite government policy and planning to maintain stable employment and production. The market system which served society well for several decades has been largely destroyed by many restrictions of Government regulations and the concentration of market power in the hands of a few. The greatest danger is where one powerful retailer can import cheap products for short-term which destroys our production units then increases costs in the long term to our consumer and risks shortages in the future. It also leaves their competitors, loyal to B.C. products, at a disadvantage. This is the most serious issue to be faced by the Committee members because unless solutions can be found in this area, the Minister's target of 65 per cent self-sufficiency can't be achieved. The use of House Brands by the major chains can be dangerous for the local processing industry and partly the reason for many processing plants going under in the last few years. This area will be looked at with care by the Committee and the Research Staff in the next few months. Our future policy concerns must be to insure production of a high quality and nutritional product at a reasonable price to the consumer at all times, which will also maintain a high level of employment in the industry. We should never allow ourselves to be entirely dependent on foreign supply as we can see the results of that with high coffee prices and the 10 per cent increase of most fruit and vegetables due to the devaluation of the Canadian dollar, which will go even lower yet, likely to 84 cents. This will greatly affect most food prices due to our dependence on foreign supply and a situation I warned about as far back as 1971 with few people inside Government or out, listening.

Oil hopes rest in Atlantic

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's best hopes for major new oil reserves lie in areas off the northeast coast of Newfoundland and off Labrador and Baffin Island the president of Imperial Oil Ltd. said Tuesday.

J.A. Armstrong said the estimated recoverable oil potential in the eastern offshore region could range from three billion to 26 billion barrels, "which would put it in the North Sea category."

But getting the oil to market would pose a monumental problem, Armstrong told delegates to a seminar on Canada's oil future.

If early exploration is successful, oil production "from the deep-water Atlantic will be constrained by the speed at which deep-water production technology can be developed and by the availability of financial, manpower and material resources," he said.

"Under the most favorable circumstances, we think it will be the early 1990s before oil can move to market in large quantities."

Armstrong said the dispute between the federal and Newfoundland governments over the ownership of offshore minerals in the Newfoundland and Labrador areas is a major impediment to exploration.

In the case of Imperial, he said, this dispute and other uncertainties have delayed the company's proposed east-coast drilling program by at least a year.

Farther north, an environmental study announced by the federal government could further delay exploration drilling in an area where environmental studies already are taking place, he said.

Armstrong said governments must find a way of speeding up the decision-making process and "the many time-consuming consultative procedures involved in petroleum development if we are to have a hope of meeting our national energy targets."

The seminar was sponsored by the Toronto investment house of McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd.

William Daniel, president of Shell Canada Ltd., said the refining and marketing business in Canada has developed an "infrastructure," which has enabled it to survive hardships of recent years.

He said there has been too much government intervention in the past but there is a growing awareness of the serious effects it has had on business.

J.P. Gallagher, chairman of Dome Petroleum Ltd., said discoveries in the Mackenzie delta and Beaufort Sea regions have been especially encouraging.

These discoveries indicate there will be sufficient reserves during the next three years to support construction of a gas pipeline by 1983 to move delta and Beaufort gas via an all-Canadian route along the Mackenzie valley, he said.

Molstar par set

With a combined time of 55.120 seconds for two runs, Stewart Green of Grouse Mountain, Vancouver B.C., took first place in the Molson Pacesetter Race, held Monday, November 14th, at Sunshine Village, Banff. Stewart was followed closely by Mike DesBrisay, of Paskapoo, and Don MacLachlan, of Lke Eden, with combined times of 55.415 and 55.706 respectively.

Ninety-three professional ski instructors, representing the Molstar ski areas in Western Canada, took part in the event.

The Pacesetter Race is the event in which Western Canada's ski instructors compete to determine the 'par' for the 1977-78 Molson Molstar program. The winner, Stewart Green, has his time recorded as '0', and all the other competitors are handicapped in relation to his time. In this way, all Molstar courses in Western Canada are standardized so that recreational skiers participating in the Molstar program can receive comparable ratings wherever they enter a Molstar event and can measure their improvement throughout the season.

BEATS OUTSIDERS
SYDNEY (Reuter) — David Graham of Australia ended foreign domination of the Australian Open golf championship Sunday when he won by three strokes after a battle with American veteran Don January over the final 18 holes. Graham, 31, played superb pressure golf at the Australian Club, Kensington, to win the $200,000 tournament with a final round of one-under-par 71. He became the first Australian to win the tournament since 1972.

Teams and fans ready to go for Grey Cup Saturday

Albert Henry George Grey was a fourth generation Earl who, for reasons unknown, had impressed the British Parliament and Buckingham Palace to an extent that it was thought to be fitting that he be rewarded with one of the more prestigious "posts" in the Empire. Consequently he set sail for the Dominion of Canada in 1904 to assume duties as the young nation's Governor-General.

History shows that His Lordship did his post proudly, so much so in fact that he was an extremely popular representative of the King and had his term extended to 1911.

However, affairs of state can sometimes become a little tiresome so on occasion Earl Grey would quietly slip out of his Government House offices in order to catch a football match at Ottawa's Varsity Oval.

He like football and particularly the way "colonial" enjoyed knocking their heads together. His enthusiasm reached the point where he decided in 1909 to donate a Cup for the "amateur football rugby championship of Canada."

The Grey Cup was born — and right from the start this $48 piece of silverware and events surrounding it have taken some amusing turns.

Next week in Montreal's Olympic Stadium the Cup will be up for grabs again in what now is a nation-wide celebration. It is also referred to as the Grand National Drunk.

Close to 70,000 will watch the game in the Olympic Stadium and millions more will settle in front of their televisions to take it in as well. Thousands of dollars will be won and lost in office pools and some will celebrate to such a degree that the game itself will be just a hazy memory — or no memory at all. Earl Grey's cup has become a multi-million dollar event, but let's go back to its humble beginnings and review that strange history of this old mug down through the years.

To begin with after Earl Grey pledged that he would donate a cup for amateur rugby football he promptly forgot about it. Three months after he said "I will" he finally did have the cup made after a gently reminder from Cup trustees.

The silversmith completed his task in 1909, however, there is a plaque on the Cup saying it was first won in 1908, a year before its birth. Hamilton Tigers won the Grey Cup in 1915 and during one very wild off season party the lads thought history had cheated them. Hamilton won the Canadian title in 1908 so they figured "what the hell" and hired a silversmith to attach their 1908 victory on the Cup as well.

In 1912 Hamilton Alerts won the Cup after an 11-4 win over the Argos. But the game almost didn't get underway. As both sides stood on the field ready to start, somebody noticed something unusual and asked a simple question: "Where's the bloody ball?" There wasn't one. The man in charge of the football had left it in the dressing room, locked the door and disappeared. The door had to be kicked open before the kicking on the field could start.

During the First World War Year a trustee locked the Cup in a Toronto trust company vault and it wasn't seen again until 1920 when a member of the trustee's family noticed it among the heirlooms and told another family member to "get that thing out of here." In 1929 a member of a Hamilton team kept the cup in a closet in his home and used it to hold boots and umbrellas.

The Calgary Stampede won the Grey Cup on November 27, 1948 in Toronto by defeating Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7. You could say Riders were caught napping because this was the last time the "sleeper play" would ever be used in the Grey Cup. On the play before the big one, Calgary quarterback Keith Spait called a play where halfback Normie Hill ran down the field, lined with players, bands, cheerleaders etc., and flopped down on the Calgary sideline. The more than 20,000 Varsity Stadium fans saw what was happening and screamed wildly but Ottawa didn't notice. So one the next play Spait dropped back to pass while Hill got up on the sideline, with nobody between himself and the goal line the halfback caught the ball and romped in to score. The play was banned in 1961.

The 1950 Grey Cup was known as the Mud bowl. Again at Varsity Stadium there had been controversy for several years over failure of organizers to buy a tarp to cover the field. The tarp was not purchased for the 1950 game because organizers said "we didn't think it would snow." Eight inches fell the night before the game, then it turned to rain. The snow removal truck got stuck in the field and had to be towed off with a tractor — with predictable results. The field looked like no man's land. At one point in the game referee Hec Crighton noticed a player face down on a puddle of water and saved him from drowning.

Billy Wray of Montreal was a Grey Cup official for the 1953 Grey Cup and had some last minute business to clean up at the Royal York in Toronto before heading for Varsity Stadium. He was late for the game and couldn't get a taxi. However, Wray was an undertaker by profession so he quickly called the "shop" and had a hearse sent over. He and another official climbed in and rode off then to the stadium. The hearse pulled up outside and the two promptly got out. It is said that several drunken spectators, upon seeing this, immediately took the pledge!

B.C. Lions won the Grey Cup in 1964. When they checked out of their hotel in Toronto to head for the airport and a fantastic welcome back in Vancouver, they realized they had forgotten the Cup. An official had to race back to the hotel in a taxi to retrieve it and nearly missed the flight. When the Lions arrived back in Vancouver, B.C. Sports Hall of Fame member, By Bailey carried the Cup off the aircraft. The thousands of fans cheered wildly — but they didn't realize the Lions had nearly forgotten to bring the Grey Cup home.

In 1957 there was five minutes left to play and Hamilton was leading Winnipeg 25-0. Ray Bawel of Hamilton intercepted a Winnipeg pass and took off for a certain touchdown. He was streaking down the sideline when a fan (there were field side seats) standing beside a policeman stuck out a leg and tripped him, then promptly disappeared. After the season was long over, Bawel received a package at his home in the U.S. It was a $154 watch with an inscription on the back: "From the Tripper. Grey Cup, 1957."

For Canadians, one of the all time Italian favourites is Spaghetti Sauce served with the many, many different varieties of pasta available today. Becoming increasingly popular are other Italian dishes based on a good Spaghetti Sauce - Chicken Marengo, Lasagna, Veal Scallopini and Canneloni.

To describe Italian cooking it is important to mention the varieties of pasta. In Italy, pasta cookery is divided into two categories - "Pasta Bolognese" and "Pasta Napoletana". Pasta Bolognese, the specialty of Northern Italians, is a flat ribbon-type pasta usually made with eggs and often cooked fresh at home. Pasta Napoletana prepared by Italians from Southern Italy is tubular in shape and sold in a dried form that keeps for long periods before cooking.

To properly cook the dried forms of pasta which number in the hundreds, add to rapidly boiling salted water and cook for about 12 minutes until it reaches the "al dente" stage of doneness. Remove the saucepan from the stove. Cover it and leave the pasta to swell in the water for a few minutes. Drain thoroughly. Pasta products must not be overcooked. They should be firm to the bite but not soft. To prevent pasta from sticking together, add approximately 1 tablespoon of cooking oil to boiling water.

Chicken Marengo is a superb way to treat friends and family to the romantic cooking of Italy. Chicken pieces are simmered in a savory Spaghetti Sauce, made by seasoning tomatoes and mushrooms with a packaged Spaghetti Sauce Mix, a blend of choice herbs and spices. For an elegant touch, wine may be added. Serve over Spaghetti or your favourite pasta.

A quotation by Christopher Morley says, "No man is lonely while eating Spaghetti - it requires too much attention".

Chicken Marengo
1 broiler fryer, chicken,
2 to 2-1/2 lbs. cut up
1 tsp. Lawry's Seasoned Salt
1 pkg. Lawry's Spaghetti
Sauce mix (1-1/2 oz.)
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup salad oil
1/2 cup sauteur
3 tomatoes, peeled, quartered
2 cups sliced, fresh mushrooms

Sprinkle the chicken pieces with the Seasoned Salt. Blend the Spaghetti Sauce Mix and crumbs, roll the chicken in the seasoned crumb mixture. Heat the salad oil in a skillet to medium hot and brown chicken pieces carefully. Add the wine, tomatoes, mushrooms and remaining crumb mixture. Cover and simmer for about 45 minutes or until the chicken is tender. Serve over spaghetti or your favourite pasta.

Makes 4 servings.

Jobs for youth called for

JOBS FOR OUR YOUTH

Jim Fulton, Federal New Democratic Party Candidate for Skeena said today, "Many of us here in Skeena are pondering our future employment and the employment opportunities for our children. The Liberals do not have an employment philosophy that goes beyond such programs as L.I.P., L.E.A.P., O.F.Y., and Canada Works.

Skeena is in need of REAL, long term employment development", says Mr. Fulton. "We know it, the Liberals know it; so what do they do? Give us extra welfare band-aid handouts. The Liberal M.P. for Skeena seems pleased to be handing out a million dollars worth of social damage. The short-term poorly paid jobs are no solution for the people of Skeena nor for Canada."

"After all, they end after roughly one year and are not renewable. Thus," continued Mr. Fulton, "the Canada Works employees are dumped back into the ranks of the unemployed a year down the road. This form of short-term 'work for your welfare' is highly destructive socially."

"The Liberal M.P. should be embarrassed to announce funding such programs. We want jobs in Skeena, not Welfare, our children want a future."

Davies trying to stop ship hunt

By ED WALTERS
ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Brian Davies had said it before but this time he was being asked to make the statement as plain as possible.

"If we're successful in ending the ship hunt (for seals) it is not my intention to interfere with the landmen's seal hunt," Davies replied.

The 42-year-old executive director of the International Fund for Animal Welfare (IFAW) also was ready to give his account of how money is collected and spent to finance opposition to the Canadian-Norwegian seal hunt off Newfoundland.

"If we'd been cooking the books we'd have been in the clink long ago," he said.

The IFAW is broke, mainly as a result of a campaign to end the use of leghold traps to catch fur-bearing animals in Ohio, Davies said.

So the fund's 200,000 contributors around the world are being asked to provide more money to protest the 1978 seal hunt that opens in early March.

APPEALED SENTENCE

In a recent interview that was interrupted briefly by a stop at RCMP headquarters in St. John's, Davies talked about the financing of protests, Newfoundlanders and the seal hunt.

Davies was convicted earlier this year in a Newfoundland court of breaking seal protection regulations that forbid unauthorized persons to fly aircraft less than 2,000 feet above a seal and land less than half a nautical mile from a seal.

He was sentenced to 14 days in jail, fined $1,000 and ordered to stay away from seal hunting areas. He appealed the conviction to district court in Corner Brook, Nfld., where a hearing is expected later this fall.

The district court set bail at $1,000 and ordered him to remain in Canada. Bail travel restrictions later were lifted to enable him to move back and forth between Canada and the United States. He must report at regular intervals to police in Canada or the U.S.

Davies said if his conviction is upheld he will not defy the law by appearing at the hunt in March but will concentrate his efforts on the European fur market where most seal pelts wind up as luxury coats, slippers and trim on other garments.

DENIES ALLEGATIONS

"I don't get any money from the fake-fur industry," Davies said, repeating a frequent denial of allegations that he is paid by European manufacturers to ruin the sealing venture.

"A couple of hundred thousand people in 30 countries contribute to the fund."

"Last year the income was about $1 million—but it costs $2 to generate one letter of protest against the seal hunt."

"I'm paid as executive director. As best we can, we come up with a wage that reflects the value of the job."

He would not reveal his salary.

Davies said the IFAW was told last year by the federal revenue department that it could not remain tax-free as a charitable organization while encouraging people to write to their members of Parliament to oppose the hunt.

GAVE UP EXEMPTION
"We decided you could not effectively work for animals if you could not bring pressure to bear on legislators so we gave up the tax privilege."

While Canadian charitable organizations are not permitted by tax laws to engage in lobbying, the reverse is true in the U.S. where the IFAW still is registered, Davies said.

"In fact, in the U.S., charitable organizations must lobby. governments have to have some kind of grassroots pressure."

The IFAW books are audited by a firm in Fredericton, where the fund's headquarters are located, Davies said. Copies of annual audits were sent to the Canadian and U.S. governments and to "20 or 30" American regulatory bodies.

"You can come over to Fredericton any time you want and go through our books."

Davies said the biggest IFAW campaign so far has been in opposition to leghold traps in Ohio. A total of $650,000 had been spent to obtain 300,000 signatures on a petition protesting use of the traps and "to battle the New York fur moguls."

A spokesman said "hate letters," including some from elementary-school children in the U.S. and Europe, arrive frequently in Newfoundland.

John Ritter

"Show business is my life," observes John Ritter, who stars as Jack Tripper in ABC-TV's 'Three's Company' and whose father was country-western star Tex Ritter.

Born in Burbank, Calif., he attended Hollywood High School where he was student body president in 1966. He then enrolled at the University of Southern California as a theatre arts major. Prior to receiving his B.A., he was invited to participate in the USC-USA Edinburgh Festival during the summers of 1968 and 1969 and appeared in 18 different plays in Scotland, England, Holland and Germany.

His stage credits include 'Desire Under the Elms' at the Berkshire Theatre Festival and the Kennedy Center, 'The Glass Menagerie' and 'Butterflies Are Free' with Jean Stapleton at the Totem Pole Playhouse, where he also did 'Forty Carats,' a Shakespeare Society of America production of 'The Tempest' and 'As You Like It,' the first production of the Los Angeles Free Shakespeare Festival. He also performed in 'Fellier's People' at the Factory in Los Angeles. Most recently he played the lead role of Gene in 'Nevada' at the Mark Taper Forum Laboratory in Los Angeles.

Ritter made his TV debut in 'Dan August' and his numerous television credits include 'The Waltons,' in which he played a recurring role, 'Hawaii Five-O,' 'Medical Center,' 'M*A*S*H,' 'Kojak,' 'The Bob Newhart Show,' 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show,' 'Starsky and Hutch,' 'The Streets of San Francisco,' 'Doc,' 'The Rookies,' 'Rhoda' and 'Phyllis.' He also performed in 'The Lie' on Playhouse 90, in the 'ABC Movie of the Week,' 'The Night That Panicked America' and a filmed play for PBS, 'Who's Happy Now?'

His avocational interests include karate and psychology. He also refers to himself as "one of the last living Beatlemaniacs."

SHIRTS FOR SALE LONDON (CP) — A sign on a stall in a street market here read: "Unisex shirts: genuine person-made fibre."

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — White Mountain Middle School is offering students an unusual course for building self-confidence: rock climbing.

Thirty pupils in Grades 6 through 8 are enrolled in the course, offered for the first time this year in the Ruidoso schools.

"Almost all the kids say they are really afraid at one point during a climb," said course instructor Bob Palko. "Usually kids won't admit fear that easily." But he said learning to admit fear and conquer it is "the main value of the course: building self-confidence."

There have been no injuries to students taking the course.

"The kids all encourage each other," Palko said. "They laugh at each other on the way up, but cheer or applaud when the climber makes the top."

STATISTIC GIVEN The most northerly point of Canada is Cape Columbia on Ellesmere Island in the Northwest Territories at 83 degrees north latitude.

WALKING TALL PART II

The incredible but true story of Buford Pusser, the ferociously honest Tennessee sheriff whose exploits have become legendary, continues in 'Walking Tall Part II,' to be rebroadcast Dec. 2 on 'The ABC Friday Night Movie.'

The 1975 movie begins exactly where its predecessor 'Walking Tall' left off: the determined Pusser (Bo Svenson, in photo) recovers from the severe wounds he suffered in the ambush that killed his wife and relentlessly hunts down the gunmen responsible.

After Pusser is re-elected sheriff of McNairy County he goes about his business of cleaning up the vice operations that have corrupted the county for years, while three hired killers go about their business—eliminating him.

WINERIES PROSPER
WASHINGTON (CP)—Small "mom and pop" wineries are beginning to prosper in the U.S. The bureau of alcohol, tobacco and firearms says there are 615 wineries in about 30 states, a 41-per-cent increase since 1970. California leads the way with 353 wineries, followed by New York, Ohio, Oregon, Michigan and Pennsylvania with between 16 and 29 each.

SKATERSSEEK SUPPORT

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Terry Stevens, 23, and Bryan Lynch, 26, plan to roller skate to Ottawa from Kingston, 140 miles, next August to raise money for the muscular dystrophy campaign. They call themselves the Roller Kings. Both are novices at the sport—Stevens has never roller skated before.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT: ABC calls it "a breakthrough" and church groups condemn it as "prime time pollution" but the ratings indicate it's a smash hit. So despite angry outrage from churches, PTAs and homosexual groups, ABC's controversial sex comedy 'Soap' will stay on the air. The premiere of 'Soap' walloped its opposition in the ratings, proving sex sells on television. No other show in television history created as much controversy as 'Soap.' And the public outcry was at its strongest even before the show aired. Reviewing the characters and situations on 'Soap' it's easy to understand why many are labeling the continuing story as "the dirtiest show on television." . . . When Esther Rolle quit her role as the mother on TV's 'Good Times,' she complained to an interviewer about the Jimmie Walker character on the show: "Who wants (to be the mother of) a 19-year-old son with no interest in school and who has to be read to by his little brother?" . . . For his part Jimmie (J.J.) Walker says that the character he plays is true to life. "Everything was my worst subject," Jimmie says. "I failed in everything. My best was history and I just passed that because I knew who Abe Lincoln was." . . . ABC is doing a little gentle arm-twisting to try to get Jack Paar back on big time TV. He's been having secret talks with the brass. They'd like to put him in against Johnny Carson to wage war for the late-night ratings.

TV BACKSTAGE: Ed Asner, the star of the new 'Lou Grant' show, was at Chateau Madrid bragging about his new look. He lost 28 pounds. "I did it with resistance to temptation and astronomical protein. That's high protein in this inflationary world." . . . John Travolta has come to an agreement with producers of 'Welcome Back, Kotter.' He will remain playing Barbarino on the series but will be seen much less, giving him more time to pursue other acting endeavors.

Mildred Natwick (left), guest starring as a delightfully confused senior citizen living in the past, is befriended by Emily Hartley (Suzanne Pleshette) in 'THE BOB NEWMAN SHOW,' Saturday, Dec. 3 on CBS-TV.

(PBS) MOVIE THEATER: 10:00 PM E.S.T., P.S.T., M.S.T.-9:00 PM C.S.T.

"The Blue Angel" 1930 Marlene Dietrich shot to international fame in Josef von Sternberg's study of a staid professor (Eril Jannings) brought to ruin because of his infatuation with an alluring but heartless cabaret singer. (R) (Check local listings for alternate viewing day and time.)

IT'S DEADLY

A small-town sheriff races against time to halt the deadly effects of lethal chemicals in 'It's Deadly,' a world premiere drama Dec. 3 on 'NBC Saturday Night at the Movies.'

In this sequel to the TV-movie 'The Girl in the Empty Grave,' Andy Griffith (photo) returns to the role of Sheriff Abel Marsh, lawman in the small community of Jasper Lake, Calif.

When several townsfolk die under mysterious circumstances, Marsh investigates and discovers an overturned tractor-trailer carrying deadly chemicals destructive to human life and vegetation. He also learns of a sinister plot: governmental officials have descended on the area hoping to keep the terrible threat of a biological weapon secret.

Dan O'Herlihy co-stars.

Hobbit Bilbo Baggins has a thing for rings—whether they turn up magically in a tunnel (top) or are blown by the master of wizardry Gandalf (below) in 'THE HOBBIT.' Orson Bean is Bilbo's voice and John Huston speaks for Gandalf in this animated version of J.R.R. Tolkien's classic Sunday, Nov. 27 on NBC-TV.

THE HOBBIT

'The Hobbit,' the first dramatization for TV of any work by J.R.R. Tolkien, will be presented on NBC-TV Sunday, Nov. 27.

Balladeer Glenn Yarbrough will sing the theme song 'The Greatest Adventure,' one of 13 songs to be featured in the animated film. The entire score was composed, arranged and conducted by Maury Laws. Several lyrics were written and adapted by Jules Bass and Tolkien's words serve as lyrics for other tunes.

Voices for principal characters are provided by John Huston, Orson Bean (the voice of Bilbo Baggins, in photo), Richard Boone, Otto Preminger, Cyril Ritchard, Hans Conreid and Brother Theodore.

The story concerns the little people who live in the magical world of Middle-earth, and tells of the epic battle between the gentle hobbits and the evil dragons and goblins who threaten them.

'The Hobbit' has been recommended for viewing by the National Education Association.

talking about TV

PRIME TIME SCHOOL TELEVISION

As each holiday season approaches, the television set overflows with specials about Santa, reindeer, Scrooge and Tiny Tim. All are designed to remind us of the Christmas spirit. This year is no exception because we will be treated to a very special Christmas story called THE GATHERING, Sunday, Dec. 4 on ABC-TV.

THE GATHERING is the emotion-packed drama of a man who learns that this Christmas will be his last. Adam Thornton, estranged from his wife and children, lives the life of a rugged individualist until he learns that he is incurably ill. Realizing his death is imminent and time is running out, he seeks urgently to mend his ways, particularly with his sorely-divided family.

The family reunion at Christmastime, with only Adam knowing of his imminent death, is indeed a tense gathering. The bitter leftovers from years of no communication are not easily erased in the minds of his children. And so the struggle is theirs. Each must rationalize his own reasons for needing and wanting to remain part of a very closely-knit group, the family. All must forgive each other's failings and recognize that the intimate bond that holds them together is greater than time or space or distance.

The positive lesson of life, learned through death, and the ability of men and women to grow and change within the timeless order of the family as portrayed in THE GATHERING are not simply lessons for this holiday season. They are lessons to be talked about, thought about and lived in all seasons.

Prime Time School Television (PTST), a national non-profit organization that provides educational material to help young people get the most out of programs like THE GATHERING, has a thought provoking guide for you and your children on this very sensitive program. It explores the questions raised by young people when faced with the death of their loved ones and contrasts the artificial images of life and death so often portrayed in "cops-and-robbers" TV shows. The PTST guide suggests ways to consider the quality, not the length of life. It reminds students that the problems which confront the Thornton family affect all of us at one time or another.

To make sure that you and your family get the most out of this special Christmas story, send for the PTST study guide on THE GATHERING. It's free. Just write to Jane Rosner, PTST, 120 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

The Merry Widow

Public television will present a new English-language production of Franz Lehar's zesty operetta 'THE MERRY WIDOW' starring Beverly Sills Monday, Nov. 28 on PBS, taped as it was presented earlier this fall at the San Diego Civic Theater.

Appearing with Miss Sills in this all-new San Diego Opera Company production will be Alan Titus, Nolan Van Way, Glenys Fowles, Ryan Allen and David Rae Smith.

Miss Sills said the production, which was conceived and directed by Tito Capobianco, is "the most beautiful 'Merry Widow' production I've ever seen and will appeal to almost every taste."

A large part of that appeal, Miss Sills explained, will be the new English-language lyrics in the operetta. Pulitzer Prize-winning lyricist Sheldon Harnick, who wrote the lyrics for 'Fiddler on the Roof,' 'Fiorello!' and other musicals, turned a new translation of 'The Merry Widow' into the frothy and frequently funny operetta that was taped for the special.

"The operetta is delightful," executive producer David Prowitt said. "The sets are grand, the costumes delicious and the new English lyrics are genuinely funny."

Based on a French comedy by Henry Meilhac entitled 'L'Atache,' 'The Merry Widow' is a classic love story and became the pattern for later operettas: in Act I he is ardent but she says no, in Act II the lovers' positions are reversed and in Act III, when they are both willing, the operetta ends.

Miss Sills, the first lady of American opera, made her first appearance in 'The Merry Widow' when she was only 17 years old, while touring with an operetta company under the aegis of Broadway producer J.J. Shubert. She first appeared with the San Diego Opera Company in 1970 and has been featured with the company three times since then.

Check your local PBS station for broadcast day and time.

THE HONEYMOONERS CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

Christmas is in the air and Jackie Gleason and the Honeymooners will celebrate that holiday with a version of 'A Christmas Carol' that Dickens would never have dreamed of in his wildest nightmare in 'The Honeymooners Christmas Special,' airing Monday, Nov. 28 on ABC-TV.

Jackie Gleason (left) and Audrey Meadows as Ralph and Alice Kramden and Art Carney (right) and Jane Kean as Ed and Trixie Norton have been fighting life's little frustrations ever since their days as television's favorite friends on the old 'Honeymooners.'

Ralph's boss believes that Ralph is the perfect man to direct the company's Christmas play. Ralph wants the assignment because the last director was promoted to Vice President. Ralph, of course, has never in his life directed a play, but that doesn't stop him as he casts Norton (Carney) in the roles of Tiny Tim and Scrooge in 'A Christmas Carol' and sells commercial plugs to help pay the production expenses.

BING'S MERRIE OLDE CHRISTMAS

Bing Crosby, whose legendary voice has been a part of Christmas since he began celebrating the season in song about half a century ago, will be seen Wednesday, Nov. 30 on CBS-TV in his annual Christmas special, an imaginative hour of music, humor and warmth taped in London in early September, five weeks before his death.

The innovative special, entitled "Bing Crosby's Merrie Olde Christmas," is woven around the Crosby family's responding to an invitation from an imaginary British relative, Sir Percival Crosby, to celebrate the holidays in his ancestral English country home filled with characters portrayed by some of Britain's most popular performers.

Included are special guest rock superstar David Bowie (left), Twiggy, Ron Moody, top British award-winning comic genius Stanley Baxter and the Trinity Boys Choir (from London's Trinity School) in addition to Crosby's wife Kathryn and their three children.

SNAKE HAD OPERATION

RUSTENBURG, South Africa (CP) — An Egyptian cobra, badly hurt by stone-throwers, was rescued and taken to a veterinary surgeon. The vet performed an open abdominal cavity operation—probably the first in the world on a snake—splitting the skin at the wound, replacing the internal organs and sewing it back together. The snake is doing fine.

BIRTH RATE LEVELLING

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. birth rate, which has been dropping steadily since 1959, seems to be levelling off around 14.7 live births per 1,000 persons. The U.S. Census Bureau predicts an increase of eight per cent by 1980 in the number of women of child-bearing age, which will slightly increase the birth rate.

PROUD TO BE A BANK

COPENHAGEN (CP) — The real proof of political fame in Denmark is not provided by high office, but through being chosen by a savings bank as the model for their annual money box. In just four years, the toy bank issued by the Bikuben savings bank has become an object for collectors and made the bank a gilt-edged investment.

CHILDREN MAKE MOSAIC

GLENDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Sixth-graders at Pioneer School have made a mosaic thunderbird from assorted beans and seeds preserved with a hard coat of glue. The 80 students spent about 3,000 hours making the unique remembrance to leave the new school, because they were the first "graduating" class.

EXERCISE IN THE PARK

PRETORIA (CP) — This is likely to be the first city in South Africa with a "trim park." City council is giving a large piece of wooded ground so residents can exercise on the three-kilometre pathway for running, wooden apparatus for exercises, and facilities for table tennis, handball, scaledown hockey, soccer and cricket.

COURT MARTIAL OF GEORGE ARMSTRONG CUSTER

Brian Keith, Ken Howard, Blythe Danner and James Olson star in the television adaptation of the best-selling novel 'The Court Martial of George Armstrong Custer' on 'The Hallmark Hall of Fame' Thursday, Dec. 1 on NBC-TV.

Screenwriter John Gay adapted Douglas C. Jones' highly acclaimed novel, a literary success in both its hardcover and paperback editions, which combines fact and fiction to portray what might have happened if the controversial Gen. Custer (Olson, seated right) had survived the massacre at Little Big Horn to stand trial for his actions.

Keith (standing) plays Allan Jacobson, Custer's defense counsel in the court martial. Howard takes on the role of Army prosecutor Maj. Asa Gardiner and Miss Danner (seated, left) portrays Custer's wife Elizabeth.

NEW YORK (AP) — Carrol O'Connor is convinced viewers see him as Frank Skeffington rather than Archie Bunker when he plays the lead in a TV remake of The Last Hurrah.

"The public has no trouble when an actor changes roles," O'Connor said in an interview. "That problem occurs more in the mind of a producer."

"If you give a good performance the public will accept you," said the man best known for his part in the popular and long-running All in the Family TV series.

O'Connor wrote the script for the two-hour Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation to be aired Nov. 16 on NBC. He also helped produce the show and played Skeffington. Spencer Tracy portrayed the powerful, old-style politician in a 1958 movie based on the novel by the Edwin O'Connor.

"The first thing I did was run out and see the old picture," said O'Connor, who is no relation to the late novelist. "After seeing Tracy, I said, 'Gee, I wish I could play that part as well as he did.'"

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Thelma Houston doesn't look like Bessie Smith, although some fans say she's just as dynamic and can sing like the old queen of the blues.

In any case, Thelma will portray Bessie in a movie early next year.

Miss Houston's starring role in Columbia's movie about Bessie Smith, is the latest development in an entertainment career that took more than a decade to move into high gear.

Thelma said her record company, Motown, groomed her for the Bessie Smith role by sending her to an acting teacher. She found "I could hitch the two things—singing and acting—together."

Trying to convince Columbia to back the picture, Thelma dressed up in a 1920s costume and, backed by musicians repertoire of Bessie Smith songs. Columbia, she said, was "totally stunned."
